Please note that:

- The Working Time Directive only sets minimum standards and Member States are always allowed to provide higher levels of protection for workers in their national laws and regulations.
- Filling in the questionnaire, please keep in mind that the Working Time Directive only applies to workers and not to self-employed persons. Also keep in mind that it does not set levels of pay for working time, which is a purely national responsibility.
- The background document provides useful information regarding the concepts used in the following questionnaire. Please refer to it as necessary.
- There are a number of questions offering the possibility of making additional contributions under each point, and also a longer opportunity to express your opinion at the end.

Please confirm you have read through these important elements.

1. Objectives and approach to the review of the Working Time Directive

1. A. Impact of the Working Time Directive

In your opinion, what is the impact of the current Working Time Directive giving workers the right to a limit to average weekly working time (currently set at 48 hours) and to minimum daily and weekly rest periods?

	Fully disagree	Tend to disagree	No opinion	Tend to agree	Fully agree
It protects the health and safety of workers and people they work with*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

Please elaborate on your opinion with regard to the impact on health and safety of workers and people they work with

300 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

The working time directive lays down the EU framework for the maximum weekly working time and the daily and weekly rest periods

Please elaborate on your opinion with regard to the impact on job creation

300 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

The national transposition of ECJ rulings has created new inflexibility and a negative impact on job creation due to increased labour costs.

Please elaborate on your opinion with regard to the impact on the cost of running a business

300 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

This newly created inflexibility of working time organisation is an important cost factor notably for Crafts and SMEs since they have limited staff and new constraints for work organisation which reduce the capacity of small businesses to take on additional orders.

If you see another impact, please specify:

500 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

This new inflexibility on work organisation also limits economies of scale in small businesses reduces productivity and competitiveness -which in turn has a negative impact on growth and jobs.

2. Thematic questions

2. A. Scope

Concurrent contracts

A single worker may be employed under several concurrent contracts. Should the limits provided in the Working Time Directive apply to all contracts taken together or to each contract separately?

If the Directive applies per worker, this means for example that all the hours worked under the different contracts should be added together and cannot exceed 48 hours on average (unless the worker signed an opt-out).

If the Directive applies per contract, this means for example that the worker can work 48 hours on average under each separate contract without an upper limit. ***

[only one answer possible]

- It is up to Member States to decide whether working time rules shall apply per worker or per contract
- The Directive should stipulate that working time rules shall apply per worker in situations where a worker has more than 1 contract with the same employer
- The Directive should stipulate that working time rules shall apply per worker in situations where a worker has more than 1 contract in any event
- The Directive should make it clear that it only applies per contract
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify*

300 character(s) maximum

Since there is no EU mechanism for monitoring situations where there are contracts with different employers, it should either be left to Member States to decide.

2. B. Concept of working time

On-call time

On-call time corresponds to any period where the worker is required to remain at the workplace (or another place designated by the employer) and has to be ready to provide services. An example could be a doctor staying overnight at the hospital, where he can rest if there is no need to attend to patients.

Under the current Working Time Directive, as interpreted by the Court of Justice, on-call time is fully regarded as working time for the purpose of the Directive, regardless of whether active services are provided during that time. The period of on-call time within which the worker actively provides services is usually referred to as 'active on-call time', while the period within which services are not provided can be referred to as 'inactive on-call time'.

(See in particular Cases C-303/98 Simap, C-151/02 Jaeger, C-14/04 Dellas)

Please give your opinion on the following options as regards possible changes in the treatment of on-call time under the Working Time Directive:

	Very undesirable	Undesirable	No preference	Desirable	Very desirable
No change to the current rules*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Incorporate the interpretation of the Court into the Directive (i.e. codification to clarify that all on-call time has to be counted as working time)*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Set the principle that defining "on-call time" should be agreed in each sector by national social partners, for example determining that only part of inactive on-call time will be counted as working time*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>

If you would like to add comments or indicate another option, please specify:

500 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

The concept of "on-call time" should be introduced in the directive. the exact calculation of working time as part of on-call time should be left to Member State's legislation or social partner's agreements.

Stand-by time

Stand-by time corresponds to any period where the worker is not required to remain at the workplace, but has to be contactable and ready to provide services. An example could be when a technician of a nuclear facility is at home, but has to be ready to come to the plant to provide services in an emergency.

Under the current Working Time Directive, as interpreted by the Court of Justice, stand-by time does not have to be considered as working time for the purpose of the Directive. Only active stand-by time, i.e. time in which the worker responds to a call, has to be fully counted as working time.

(See in particular Cases C-303/98 Simap, C-151/02 Jaeger, C-14/04 Dellas)

Please give your opinion on the following options as regards possible changes in the treatment of stand-by time under the Working Time Directive:

	Very undesirable	Undesirable	No preference	Desirable	Very desirable
No change to the current rules*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Incorporate the interpretation of the Court into the Directive (i.e. codification to clarify that stand-by time does not have to be considered working time)*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
Introducing the obligation to partially count stand-by time as working time for the purpose of the Directive*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Introducing a limit to the maximum number of hours that a worker may be required to be on stand-by in a given period (for instance 24 hours a week), together with a derogation possibility to set a different limit via collective agreements*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

If you would like to add comments or indicate another option, please specify:

500 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

If stand-by-time is introduced in the directive, it would be appropriate to refer to the interpretation of the ECJ clarifying that stand-by time is not working time but only active stand-by time, i.e. time in which the worker responds to a call, should be counted as working time.

2.C Derogations

Compensatory rest

Under the current Working Time Directive, as interpreted by the Court of Justice, a worker who by derogation from the general rules has not received his/her minimum daily rest of 11 consecutive hours in a 24-hour period, will have to receive an equivalent period of compensatory rest (i.e. 11 hours) directly after finishing the extended working time period. This sets a maximum of 24 hours to a single consecutive shift.

(See in particular Case C-151/02 Jaeger)

How would you assess the possible introduction in the Working Time Directive of provisions regarding the period within which such a compensatory rest has to be taken:

	Very undesirable	Undesirable	No preference	Desirable	Very desirable
No change to the current rules*	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Incorporate the interpretation of the Court into the Directive (i.e. codification to clarify that compensatory rest has to be granted immediately after the extended period of work)*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Allowing employers the possibility of granting compensatory rest within 2 days*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
Allowing the possibility of granting compensatory rest within 4 days*	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

If you would like to add comments or indicate another option:

500 character(s) maximum

[Optional]

According to us, the equivalent period of compensatory rests should be granted within a reasonable period after the extended period of work. Very short delays are for certain sectors simply not feasible.

Reference period

The limit to weekly working time of 48 hours provided by the Working Time Directive is a limit to average working time. This means that in certain weeks the worker can be required to work more than 48 hours as long as this is balanced out by lower hours in other weeks. This average has to be calculated over a certain period, i.e. 'a reference period'. Currently, the standard limit to the reference period is 4 months, which can in certain sectors be extended by law up to 6 months, and by collective agreement it can be set up to 12 months.

What would be in your view the most appropriate approach to the limit set to the reference period to calculate average weekly working time:

[only one answer possible]

- No change in the current provisions
- Allow that reference periods can be set up to 6 months by law in any sector, and maintain that they can only be set up to 12 months by collective agreements
- Maintain that reference periods can be set up to 4 months by law in any sector, but allow that reference periods can be set up to 12 months by law in certain specific sectors (e.g. to take into account the size of the undertaking or to take into account fluctuations of demand)
- Allow both previous options (i.e. option 2 and option 3), meaning that reference periods can be set up to 6 months by law for any sector and up to 12 months by law in certain specific sectors
- Allow that reference periods can be set up to 12 months by law in any sector
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify*

300 character(s) maximum

The directive only allows extension of reference period to 12 months by collective agreements. It means unfair treatment for SMEs in countries without a solid collective agreement tradition. It is urgent to grant all enterprises the same flexibility level via a 12 months reference period set by law.

Opt-out

Under the current Working Time Directive, Member States have the possibility not to apply the limit to average weekly working time of 48 hours, when the worker agrees to it individually and freely with the employer, and does not suffer prejudice for revoking such agreement (the 'opt-out').

What is your view on this opt-out clause:*

[only one answer possible]

- It should be maintained unchanged
- It should be maintained, but stricter conditions for the protection of the worker should be added in the Directive
- It should be maintained, but it should be provided in the Directive that the opt-out cannot be combined with other derogations under the current Directive
- It should be abolished, but in compensation there should be additional derogations made available for employers (e.g. allowing not to count on-call time fully as working time)
- It should be abolished
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify*

300 character(s) maximum

The opt-out should be kept in the directive in order to provide additional flexibility in the case all the other options are not sufficient or applicable. But we agree that it should be strengthened and not used in combination with other derogations.

Autonomous workers

"Autonomous workers", such as for example managing executives, can fully determine their own working time (i.e. decide when and how many hours they work). Member States have the option to apply the main provisions of the Working Time Directive to these workers.

Please choose the most appropriate statement according to your views:*

[only one answer possible]

- The current Working Time Directive provides an adequate exemption as regards autonomous workers, and should not be changed
- The current exemption should be maintained in substance, but more clearly formulated, in order to enhance legal clarity and to prevent abuse
- The definition of autonomous workers is too narrow and should be expanded to other categories of workers who should be exempted too
- The definition of autonomous workers is too wide and should be limited
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify*

300 character(s) maximum

2.D Specific sectors/activities

Emergency services

The current Working Time Directive as interpreted by the Court of Justice applies to workers in emergency services, e.g. civil protection services like fire-fighting services, in the normal operation of these services. The current Directive contains several derogations that can be applied to the working time and rest periods of these workers in order to ensure the effective provision of these services. In the event of a catastrophe/disaster, the Working Time Directive does not apply at all.

(See in particular Cases C 397/01 to C 403/01 Pfeiffer and Case C-52/04 Feuerwehr Hamburg)

Please state your view on the application of the Directive to emergency services:*

[only one answer possible]

- The current rules adequately balance the need to protect the health and safety of the workers and the people they work with/for with the need to guarantee effective provision of emergency services, and should remain unchanged
- The current rules should be maintained in substance, but clarified in light of the case law of the Court of Justice, to improve legal certainty
- There should be additional derogations applicable to all or some categories of these workers, addressing their specific situation
- The Working Time Directive should not be applied to workers in emergency services
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify which additional derogations and why:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please specify why it should not be applied in emergency services:*

300 character(s) maximum

Please specify:*

300 character(s) maximum

Health care sector

The current Working Time Directive provides a derogation for health care services when they require continuity of service, meaning particularly that the rest periods of health care staff can be postponed to some extent.

Should there be a different provision on the working time organisation of health care staff with a view to safeguarding patient safety?

Please state your view:*

[Only one answer possible]

- The current rules provide enough safety for patients
- The current rules should be maintained in substance, but clarified in light of the case law of the Court of Justice on on-call time and on timing of compensatory rest to improve legal certainty
- There should be additional derogations applicable to workers in the health care sector in order to improve continuity of service
- There should be a more narrow derogation applicable to workers in the health care sector in order to improve patient safety
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify which additional derogations there should be:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please specify how the current derogation should be limited:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please specify:*

300 character(s) maximum

2.E Patterns of work

Changes in working patterns

The Working Time Directive was conceived more than 20 years ago, when information and communication technologies were not as developed and many types of present jobs did not exist yet. In light of these changes in working patterns and organisation, should the Working Time Directive introduce specific rules regulating particular situations and types of contracts such as telework, zero-hour contracts, flexitime, performance-based contracts without working time conditions, etc.?

Please state your view:*

[multiple answers possible]

- The current rules are satisfactory and do not need to be changed
- The rules should be changed in light of increasing telework
- The rules should be changed in light of zero-hour contracts
- The rules should be changed in light of increased use of flexitime
- The rules should be changed in light of increased use of performance-based contracts without working time conditions
- Other
- Do not know

Please elaborate on your answer concerning telework:*

500 character(s) maximum

EU rules should better respond to a continuous trend towards more diversified forms of work organisation and individualised working hours.

Please elaborate on your answer concerning zero-hour contracts:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please elaborate on your answer concerning flexitime:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please elaborate on your answer concerning performance-based contracts:*

500 character(s) maximum

Please specify*

500 character(s) maximum

Reconciliation of work and private life

Do you think the Working Time Directive should support better reconciliation of work and private life by introducing any of the following specific rights:

	Very undesirable	Undesirable	No preference	Desirable	Very desirable
The right for a worker to ask for specific working time arrangements (e.g. flexitime, telework) depending on their personal situation, and to have their request duly considered	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
The right for a worker to request to take daily rest in blocks of time instead of uninterruptedly, allowing the worker for example to go home early in the afternoon and later continue work from home at night, and to have their request duly considered	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

If you would like to add comments or indicate another option:

500 character(s) maximum

Working time should be agreed by both sides employers and workers. Unilateral change aiming only at more workers rights is not balanced. Additional flexibility should meet the specific needs of employers for a better work organization and of workers for a better reconciliation of work and family life

3. Looking ahead

Objectives for the future of the Working Time Directive

For the future of the Working Time Directive, how important do you consider the following objectives?

	Not at all important	Of little importance	Quite important	Very important	Do not know
While keeping the current Working Time Directive, to better ensure that Member States correctly and effectively put it into national law and practice*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
To improve legal clarity, so that the rights and obligations following from the Directive are clearer and more readable and accessible to all*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
To provide more flexibility in working time organisation for workers*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
To provide more flexibility in working time organisation for employers*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
To provide a higher level of protection to workers*	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
To protect third parties involved (co-workers, passengers, patients, etc...)*	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

Approach for the future of the Working Time Directive

Which of the following approaches for the future of the Working Time Directive do you prefer?*

[only one answer possible]

- No new initiative (maintaining the current rules)
- No legislative changes but initiatives towards improved legal clarity so that the rights and obligations following from the Directive are clearer and more readable and accessible to all (interpretative communication; 'codification' of the case law (i.e. clearly stating the case law of the Court of Justice in the legal text)
- Legislative changes but focused on the sectors where there is a specific need in terms of continuity of service (e.g. public services; sectors that work on a '24/7' basis like hospital services and emergency services)
- Legislative changes which would lead to an overall revision of the Directive, containing a mix of simplification and additional derogations while avoiding regression of the protection of workers
- Other
- Do not know

Please specify:*

300 character(s) maximum

Please motivate your answer:

500 character(s) maximum

[optional]

With regard to ECJ rulings, we see an urgent need to amend the directive on "on call-time", rest period and annual leave. Concerning the reference period it is crucial that enterprises have access to an average weekly hours calculated on a 12 months basis by law and not only by collective agreement in order to ensure an equal treatment for small enterprises not covered by collective agreements.

4. Other comments or suggestions

Do you have any other comment or suggestion on the review of the Working Time Directive that you would like to share?

2,000 character(s) maximum

Optional. No hyperlinked or attached documents allowed.

Paid Annual leave is another important topic that should be revised in the directive. The ECJ ruling created a number of new problems at national level which should be solved in the directive. The fact that there is no limit for the accumulation of paid annual leave entitlements over successive years when a worker is absent for illness or other reasons created new legal uncertainty and substantial costs increase for employers. Therefore UEAPME request the amendment of Article 7 in the directive.
